Interrogation Prerogative

Name _____

In "A Curious Case of Curiosity" WordGirl has to save the city from being barraged by questions, but sometimes questions can be useful. Asking questions can help you learn more about people, places and things. In this game, everyone can learn new things about one another when you ask, and answer, questions. Here's how you can play:

What you'll need:

- A piece of paper
- Scissors (ask an adult for help if you need it)
- A pencil or pen to write down the questions
- A hat or bowl
- Create a list of questions (we have started a list below)
- Write them on a blank sheet of paper so that you can cut them into individual strips
- Put the strips of paper with the questions into a hat or bowl
- Each player takes a turn by picking a question at random and asking another player that question
- Replace the questions and repeat until everyone has answered every question

My questions:

What's your favorite animal?

---

---

What's your favorite song?

---

---

What's your favorite word?

---

---

What's your favorite fruit?

---

---

What's your least favorite food?

---

Another question for you:

A question is a noun, but to question is a verb meaning to interrogate or doubt. What are two synonyms for question (that means other words that mean the same thing as question)?

Potential answers to "more questions": Ask, quiz, query, suspect, distrust

In "My Dad, My Teacher", Becky and Kid Potato both feel a little frustrated by their parents. There may be moments when you feel this way too. Sometimes it helps to write a letter. We've suggested some words you can use to fill in the blanks so that you can write someone in your family a message to tell them how much you appreciate them. Then write your name at the bottom of the letter and give it to someone who's important to you.
